

International Society for Prenatal Diagnosis

Student Policy

Student membership is open to individuals who are enrolled full-time as a resident, fellow or graduate student in a program that will lead to appropriate degrees or certificates in subjects relating to prenatal diagnosis and therapy. Student members shall pay dues but shall not have voting rights nor be eligible for election to office. A candidate for Student membership shall submit a letter from his/her academic advisor or program department chair confirming his/her student status. Each year that an individual applies for Student membership, a new letter from his/her academic advisor or department chair, confirming his/her continuation in the full-time program shall be submitted with dues payment. The student member dues rate shall be 50% of the regular member dues rate.

The Conference Program Committee may establish discounted student rates for the ISPD International Conference on Prenatal Diagnosis and Therapy. Eligibility for student rates for the conference shall be established as described above.
