

Through educational initiatives and outreach, ISPD strives to promote knowledge of preconception and prenatal genetics, screening, diagnosis and therapy throughout the world.

Periodically, ISPD holds training courses independently or in collaboration with partner organizations. A variety of in-person courses have been held in multiple countries across the globe on leading methodologies for fetal therapy, non-invasive prenatal testing, genetic counseling, fetal imaging, ethics, and more.

ISPD also delivers training to professionals around the world through the Virtual Education Series (for free), online Masterclasses, and virtual access to our International Conference.

The Society was formally launched in 1996 by a group of internationally recognized experts and has grown to a global society with a membership of more than 600 professionals from multiple disciplines such as prenatal and perinatal care, medical genetics, basic and translational science, genetic counseling, laboratory management, fetal therapy, ultrasonography, and ethics. ISPD has a unique focus and expertise on reproductive and prenatal genetic screening and how this aspect of care integrates with other disciplines.

Mission

By advancing the science and practice of genetics and fetal care worldwide, we will promote the health of children, their mothers, and their families.

Vision

Evidence-based practice and culturally sensitive preconception and prenatal screening, diagnostics, and therapy shall be available to all families.

International Conference

Beginning in 1996, ISPD has gathered together professionals at locations around the globe, holding conferences on five continents thus far. Experts in the field present leading research and debate emerging approaches to clinical genetics, fetal imaging, fetal therapy and other disciplines at the International Conference on Prenatal Diagnosis and Therapy.

Corporate Council

Partnering with ISPD to develop the future of education in prenatal diagnosis and therapy

International Society for Prenatal Diagnosis

Building Global Partnerships in Genetics and Fetal Care

ISPD recognizes that innovation in prenatal diagnosis and therapy derives from both academic and industry efforts.

Council Members

Each participating company nominates up to three members of their medical, scientific, or research team to represent them on the Council for one year. Members may serve consecutive terms with the annual renewal of a donation to the ISPD Education Fund.

Council Chair

Members of the Council elect a Chair to represent them and give input to the ISPD Board of Directors on education and marketing.
